The Challenge

Transforming a dated space into a contemporary abode fit for expat living requires more than just a fresh coat of paint. For Dutch interior designer Babbet Duijkers, it's about infusing life into the atmosphere. Each corner of the apartment went through a meticulous redesign, blending simplicity, natural elements, and distinctive touches.

The Result

One of the standout features is the kitchen peninsula desk, aligned with the meticulous customization aimed at maximizing space and enhancing visual appeal. It showcases the effectiveness of thoughtful design and high-quality materials, as its circular shape seamlessly integrates form and function, enhancing the visual allure of the space.

“We used the same material for the walls and doors as for the bathroom, toilet and kitchen to maintain unity and tranquillity.”

Materials

Babbet sought a material suitable for kitchen use, and given the extensive incorporation of round shapes in the design, it needed to be bendable as well. Additionally, considering the apartment is rented, ease of maintenance was a priority. Combining all these requirements, Durasein® solid surface emerged as the natural choice. It is food-safe, non-toxic, and antibacterial, with the added benefits of scratch repair, colourfulness, and easy cleaning.

The seamless kitchen desk and the backsplash create the impression of a unified, elegant piece, elevating the kitchen's sophistication. The Weathered Wood color harmonizes with the natural surroundings, contributing to a cohesive design scheme that enhances the ambiance of the kitchen.
